

The Greatest Monkey in History By Cloe Lamb

Once upon a time there was a monkey whose name was Jackie. She had big ears and her fur was brown. This curious monkey lived in a jungle with her parents, and her brother, Jackie, was very helpful and loyal.

One day, Jackie was walking in the jungle when she heard a piercing scream. She went over to where the sound came from and saw her naughty brother badly bruised and was very hurt. He told her that he had fallen off a cliff.

Jackie rushed home and took some bandages and cotton pads back to her brother immediately. He was screaming loudly and was extremely annoying, but for the sake of her brother, Jackie hushed him and used cotton pads to wipe the blood. She gently scraped off the broken skin and carefully put bandages on the cuts. She was very brave and Jackie's brother was stabilized.

When they got home, Jackie's parents saw what Jackie had done and praised and thanked her. They were very grateful for what she had done. They asked Jackie's brother never to do anything dangerous again. They didn't want any more accidents! From then on, Jackie behaved well and they lived happily ever after.
