

WOLF AND CASTLE MICE ACCUSED FOR STEALING CINDERELLA'S GLASS SLIPPERS

Reported by Pr. 6 Nathene Chow

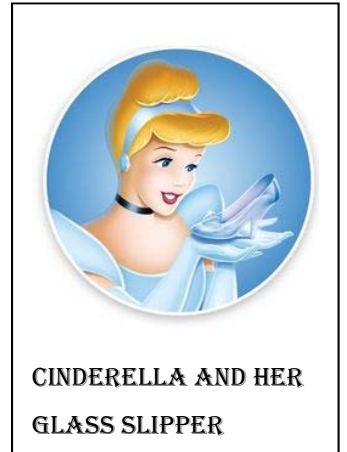

Yesterday, Cinderella lost her glass slippers. The police arrested Wolf and a few castle mice for stealing the slippers. Police force said that they would not judge by the castle mice's innocent look and how gentle they were. Wolf was arrested in bed. The police broke into his house when he was taking an afternoon nap and found those beautiful slippers in Wolf's closet. Wolf said,

Wolf (Innocent?)

"We, Wolves are innocent and gentle creatures.

We are wronged by others. We may not look cute, but that doesn't mean we are bad. Take this example: the 3 little pigs once plotted against me. They told me to blow down their houses, because they wanted to build new ones. When they were finished, they asked me to check the chimney, and they pushed me down. I didn't mean to eat them. Personally, I prefer my own organic vegetables to meat. Why would I steal Cinderella's slippers? They are so ugly and girlish, yuck!"

CINDERELLA AND HER GLASS SLIPPER

Police says Wolf might probably be saying the truth because none of his pawprints were found on the slippers, only the one belonged to the mice. Mice denied they had stolen them. They claimed, "WE ARE CINDERELLA'S FRIENDS. IT IS NATURAL FOR OUR PAWPRINTS TO BE ON THE SLIPPERS BECAUSE CINDERELLA LETS US LOOK AT THEM."

Mice pawprints found under microscope

Police force is now thinking of throwing the mice in jail and setting the wolf free.

cute little mice (probably NOT innocent)