A New Rivalry Formed?

The seven dwarves, now known as The Seven Sopranos, have just released their new song “Oh Boy” and it’s hit number one in less than a day, beating out their rival, Cinderella, whose song “Glass Slippers, Where are You?” dropped down to number two on the fairytale chart. Cinderella is not at all pleased.

“Those dwarves have no talent! They sound like seven cats being dragged up a chimney by their tails!” she ranted and stormed off in a huff.

The lead singer, Doc, said that Cinderella was just jealous of their awesome talent and they couldn’t care less. However, in a recent interview, the rapper, Dopey, said Cinderella was too full of herself and the drummer, Grumpy, said he was sick of her attitude.

Almost as a retort, Cinderella has won the award for Best Artist of the Year. Rumour has it that right after receiving the award, Cinderella went to Grumpy’s house and rubbed it in his face.

A lot of Cinderella super fans are showing their support for their singer via the messaging tree, and while they were there, they also insulted their singer’s enemies.

It looks like this rivalry won’t end any time soon.
