

Catching a Thief

Author: Anthea Kwong

Illustrated by: Inez Wan

One day, Bill and Joe walked past a jewellery shop. Jewels and watches were in the shop window. They looked at the jewels and admired them.

Suddenly, a man walked up to the window. The man looked suspicious. The man used a brick and broke the shop window and he took some jewels. When Bill and Joe saw this, they chased the thief, jumped on him, hit him and pulled at his hair. There were many other people in the street. Instead of helping the boys, they stood there crossing their arms and smiling.

Just then, a "policeman" came along. He pointed at the camera and the angry director and said "Hey boys, we are actors in a film. Now you are actors too!" Bill and Joe felt embarrassed and went home. When they got home, they saw themselves on TV and showed their family members. They all laughed and their family members said "You are nuts."
